

30 Years Service Recognition
Trudy Stein, Web Content Editor/Writer
Environmental Resource Assessment Department

Trudy started working for the District on March 5, 1979 as a Technician I in the then Resource Planning/Data Management Department. Over the years, Trudy worked hard and moved up. She became a Technician Supervisor in Data Processing, then Staff Web Analyst, and is now Web Content Editor/Writer. Trudy is known for her outstanding talent in creative imagination and is especially gifted in transforming information into graphically meaningful and unique products and presentations. Nurtured in the culture of the Fish Philosophy, Trudy is a passionate and enthusiastic member of the Environmental Resource Assessment Department's "FishERama" team and loves to help create and implement all fishy ideas.

Over the years, two particular family members have provided Trudy with the strongest support to her successful career: her mom Sara and her son Aaron. Last year, her family grew as Trudy became a grandma. Whenever Trudy mentions them, she smiles with pleasure and pride. Outside of the office, Trudy loves to sit in her backyard, feeding and counting birds, which sounds like a terrific hobby for a Water Management District employee.

Trudy considers herself young and has no retirement plans in sight. She enjoys contributing to helping the District accomplish its mission. As she always says, "I love my job."
