Bill Hancsak- Security Specialist-SR
Emergency/Security Management

While on vacation back in November 2008, Bill Hancsak was traveling on I-81 outside of Syracuse, New York, when he saw a van occupied by four females overturn in front of him during a snow storm. The van landed on its roof trapping the occupants inside.

Bill and his son were first on the scene and were able to evacuate the driver and her two daughters. However, one additional passenger was having difficulty moving as her foot was lodged under the dashboard and her seat belt was still on.

Bill and his son climbed inside the vehicle, freed her foot, unbuckled her seat belt, and pulled her out of the vehicle to safety. They called 911 and stayed with the family until the New York Police and Fire Department arrived.

A big Thank You to Bill and his son for providing assistance to members of the public whose safety was at risk.
